

Clinical Quizzes: A new section in JMNI

Introduction

In this issue of the Journal we introduce a new category of manuscripts, the Clinical Quizzes. Clinical Quizzes are succinct descriptions of single cases revealing important insights into a disease's presentation, management, and follow-up. The cases have to reside within the Journal's spectrum of diseases and are to be accompanied by a concise review of the literature and a set of questions. The main scope of this type of manuscripts is to raise the clinical aspects of both rare and common disorders, however with brief and scholarly written commentaries and instructions. We hope that Clinical Quizzes will accrue the interest among the scientists dealing mainly with clinical issues while offering important links between basic research and clinical practice.

George P. Lyritis
JMNI co-Editor in Chief